“O, Wonder...”

Mr Julian Noad - Head of College

With the passing of our much-loved Chaplain, Tim, this has been a tough week for the community. However, it is times like these that we come together and I have been delighted by the mutual support. Our thoughts and prayers are with the Aldridge family. There are no funeral or thanksgiving plans shared as yet but we look forward to holding our own Queen's memorial in due course.

In a busy week, I had to surrender my ticket to the Eat Game Awards dinner in London, where our own Food department, under Mr Mann, was nominated for but, sadly, did not win national 'best game educator'. Mrs N was able to join the team for a wonderful evening.

The opportunity to perform in public was taken up enthusiastically by a dozen senior school pupils in a delightful informal concert on Wednesday evening. These smaller showcases are such a valuable part of our performing arts programme.

Appropriately in Shakespeare week, our own touring group, the Wyvern Theatre Group have been performing "The Tempest" at venues around the South West. Mrs N and I were delighted to be able to support them at the Bristol Tobacco Factory theatre. The group closed their 'season' with a final fabulous home fixture last evening. Meanwhile, our younger performers are readying themselves for next week's performances of "Dazzle" - be sure to bag your tickets.

As the sun continues to shine, lasting for this weekend at least, we can look forward to fantastic conditions for Duke of Edinburgh bronze and silver expeditions and the Exmoor challenge outing. Also, hopefully in the sunshine, we look forward to netball and hockey versus Wellington and Shebbear respectively. Retreating indoors, we will have second language English IELTS examinations. Meanwhile, the boarders will also have trips to Crealy Adventure Park and, at home, archery action with pizzas.

Yours ever,

Julian

Tim Aldridge

Tim Will Be Remembered Always, With Great Fondness

Our wonderful Chaplain, Tim Aldridge, passed away Sunday night following a brave and dignified fight against cancer. Our hearts and our thoughts are with Tim's family and his many, many friends.

Tim impacted on the Queen's Community in a way that means he will be remembered always, with great fondness. At some point, we will come together to commemorate Tim and we will share details in due course. For now, we will all comfort each other at this time of sorrow, and for those who want or need support, it is available - please do reach out to us.

Nursery Round-up

Nursery News From Mrs Donna Kershaw - Highgrove Nursery Manager

The Highgrove Nursery have been enjoying the lovely weather this week, having picnics in the garden and appreciating the learning opportunities the sunshine has brought, looking at shadows and watering the plants that have been growing in the garden. Children have been busy discussing Mother's Day and their families as well as making special Mother's Day gifts and cards.

Puddleducks have been looking at keeping our bodies healthy with a particular focus on oral health this week. The children have been brushing 'dirt' off the large set of teeth, as well as brushing the dinosaur teeth and learning the tooth brushing song.

Tiggywinkles have enjoyed a cooking session this week, peeling, cutting and tasting different vegetables. They have also had fun exploring a variety of different sensory trays in the garden, from shaving foam to crunchy cereals for the animals to crush!

Cottontails have also enjoyed lots of time outside in the garden playing with the Tiggywinkles children, as well as having lots of painting opportunities inside, creating some lovely 'flower' pictures.

Nursery School News From Miss Lizzie Hayes - Head of Nursery School

The Nursery School children have been busy enjoying the sunshine in our wonderful garden this week. For their Forest School sessions they enthusiastically practised their stirring and mixing skills in the mud kitchen, making pies and soup. Further exploration outside the mud kitchen provided some spontaneous science discoveries using pipes to syphon water from the muddle puddle they had made. This was extended in the afternoon with channels, containers and more water! This week's dough gym activity focused on rolling small balls of dough and using pincer grip tools to place them into bowls, all set to music!

Prep School

Mr Henry Matthews - Head of Prep

We have been blessed with glorious weather here at Queen's and this has certainly helped to make us feel better after the difficult news we received at the start of the week that our beloved Chaplain, Mr Aldridge, had passed away. Tim will be missed by the whole Queen's community and I know his infectious sense of fun was the cornerstone of many assemblies, lessons and meetings in the Prep School. I only had the chance to meet Tim personally on a few occasions, but I will be forever thankful for his help and guidance during my first year at Queen's. His check-ins via telephone and offers of support were greatly appreciated and certainly made me feel welcome here. Our thoughts remain with his family at this difficult time.

Our children have made the most of the recent great weather and there has been a desire to take our learning outside the classroom.

I have witnessed numerous outdoor lessons and activities from group reading, science experiments, poetry writing and even maths, which have all made creative use of our grounds. We hope for this to continue in the coming weeks, but we also need to ensure that children are safe in the sun. It is great that I can do my annual sun cream and sun hats reminder earlier than usual. Please would parents ensure that children have both of these items in school. Fingers crossed I haven't spoken too soon and the sunshine continues for the weeks ahead.

"Dazzle" has well and truly taken centre stage this week and the cast and crew have been working incredibly hard in rehearsal and prop-making clubs. The set looks amazing and the children are growing in confidence day by day. We are very much looking forward to welcoming the audience to the Queen's Hall on Thursday evening.

This will be the first opportunity that many of our children have had to perform on the big stage. Make sure you book your tickets to see the show! Bookings can be made via the box office.

As we head into the final full week of term, I am sure I will see many of you in school in the coming days. Next week, we not only look forward to Dazzle but also fixtures, cookery clubs and, of course, the Easter 'Egg-stravaganza' on Friday afternoon.

I look forward to seeing our 'Dazzlers' tomorrow at rehearsal and wish you all a relaxing weekend.

With best wishes,

Henry

Shakespeare Week

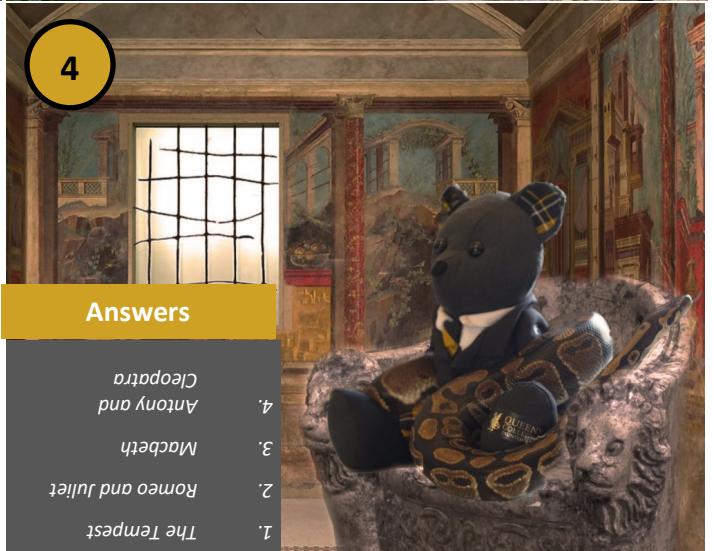

On Tuesday, some of the Prep School children in Years 3 and 4 enjoyed an afternoon of insults in celebration of Shakespeare Week. They made fortune tellers and then filled them with their own creations using some of Shakespeare's most insulting language. Isabelle started the bout by calling Benjamin a "rank, evil-eyed hedge-pig" to which he called her a "greasy, sour-faced dog-fish". Bàlint packed a punch with his "bawdy, eye-offending rabbit-sucker" although Ibrahim's "sottish, raw-boned, nut-hook" was a fair retaliation! It was wonderful to see them creatively enjoying Shakespeare's rich language more than four hundred years after his death.

Prep School

Shakespeare Week

Our Teddies also decided to celebrate Shakespeare Week by creating a quiz. Can you guess which of Shakespeare's plays they are acting out? (No teddies were harmed in the making of this quiz.)

Year 1 - Ribbon Dance

Year 1 used the opportunity provided by beautiful Spring sunshine this week to perform their final creative pieces outside with hoops and ribbons. The children choreographed their own, quite complex, ideas and performed them beautifully.

Prep School

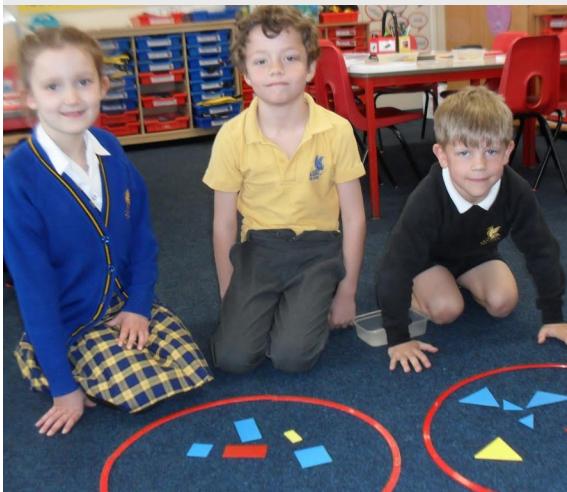

Dazzle

Children in Years 4 to 6 have been working hard on “Dazzle” since September, living in the colourful world of the fairground with its thrills and spills. Now, things are beginning to come together, the set is almost all in place and performances are on the horizon. Please do come and see it on Thursday 31 March at 6.30pm in Queen's Hall. Tickets can be booked through the Queen's Box Office - We are really looking forward to it!

Year 2 Two Dimensional

Year 2 have had a busy morning learning about two-dimensional shapes. They were investigating how many sides and vertices a range of polygons have.

Senior School

Sports Round-Up

Some great action has happened both at home and away in Senior School sports this week.

The Senior 3rd netball team has a fantastic win against Exeter School winning 21-20: the team came back from a 5 goal deficit in the last quarter. Great shooting from Abi and Isla and a number of vital interceptions from Lily. The U14A also had a great hockey match against Clayesmore. The boys put together a good performance on Saturday showing good progress with their finishing and they created a number of good chances to score. It was a good all-round team performance and pleasing for the boys to get another win.

Equestrian Update

Queen's were show jumping at Pontypool Equine Sports Centre on Sunday. Georgie came a respectable 8th (out of 47) in the 80-85 to qualify for the Keysoe Championship Plate!

Francesca was jumping on a very new horse and had two very good rounds with a couple of unlucky poles.

Senior School

Visiting artist

We were very lucky this week to have the local artist Neil Whitehead lead two workshops with GCSE and A Level pupils.

Neil presented examples from his portfolio and the way his style of work has developed from A Level to now. He inspired our pupils with his drawing techniques and how he adds colour to his pieces. Our pupils found it interesting to hear about Neil's commissions and how he is influenced by our beautiful local area. They also found it inspiring to know that Neil works locally and pointed out places that were familiar to them in his work.

Informal Concert

Thursday evening's Informal Concert was an outstanding success. Featuring a range of performances from Year 7 to 6th Form; from seasoned performers to those for whom it was their first concert experience.

There was a huge range of styles from Baroque to Music Theatre performed to a full house in the Old Music Room. All the performances were beautifully prepared and delivered and the audience were extremely impressed with the skill and maturity of the musicians. Many congratulations to all the musicians who took part: Freya Mills, Hattie Thorne, Smiley Chan, Mary-Tess McAlonan, Hattie Newcombe, Mia Aydon-Benz, Leon Hall, Fallon Gillies, Hattie Rowswell, Pippa Drummond, Millie Gubby and Georgie Ambler.

Senior School

Year 10 Maths Feast - Mathematics Competition

Felicity, Francesca, Jackie and You You took part in a Southwest Maths Feast Competition against seven other teams from Somerset and Devon at Churchill Academy. They were set a series of challenges, some involving mathematics they had learnt this year, and others involving new A level style material with just a small introduction to the methods. They had to work as pairs in some challenges, where the other pairs' answer was vital for them to complete their own question, or as a whole team unpicking different styles of problems, including an interesting set of questions entitled 'What? No words?' where all they had to go on were random bits of workings on the page. The four worked extremely well as a team and attained full marks in three of the four rounds. Overall, an excellent Maths-filled day out!

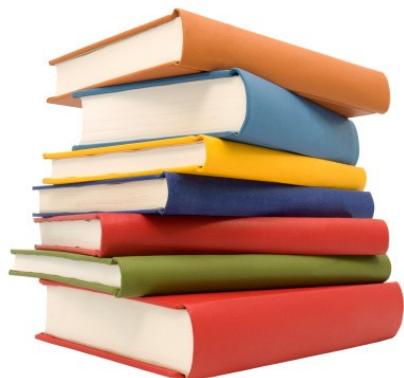

Inter-school Clay Pigeon Competition

Wednesday saw our clay shooting team heading to the Inter-school Clay Pigeon Competition held at Ling Sporting in Wellington. The team has only started this year with many of the team having no, or very little, experience of shooting, many of the boys were quite nervous as this was the first competition that most of them had entered. However, despite the initial nerves, the boys did themselves proud finishing mid-table in the overall team competition with Digby in Year 11 finishing as the second highest individual, missing out on the top spot by two clays. Well done to all of our team: they not only all shot well, but showed Queen's pupils in a positive light.

Book Fair

Offering a host of fiction and recreational non-fiction books likely to appeal to a wide range of reading interests and abilities, the annual Book Fair hosted by Mrs Ross was able to return to the senior school last week. Pupils in Years 7-11 mainstream English lessons and those in Years 7-11 in EAL visited the Fair. Many pupils, across the classes, selected at least one book to enhance their leisure time. It was not just keen readers who found something that captivated them: "This is great!" reported a Year 7 boy of his graphic novel purchase, a less daunting read than continuous prose stories. The pupils' purchases earned the College generous rewards, to be spent at a later date. Last September, the accumulated Rewards of past Fairs purchased the titles that form the Honesty Library in the Study Room, so-named because there is no formal lending system, with a set, latest return date; books are returned at the pupil's convenience. The Fair next March is already in the College calendar!

Eat Game Awards

Yesterday, the Queen's College Food and Nutrition Department, joined by Mrs Noad, travelled to London after being short-listed for a national top educator award. The food awards ceremony is part of the 'Eat Game Awards' in the category of 'Best Educator Award'. While we didn't win overall for Best Educator for all schools, colleges and universities we were still winners! We were the best school in these national food awards! We were more than happy to come third to famous Jose Luis Souto Chef Lecturer and Westminster Kingsway College (with celebrity student Jamie Oliver!).

Pupils at Queen's have been treated to a number of high culinary skills masterclasses using local, wild, fresh pheasant and partridge since September. The classes have been a fabulous opportunity for pupils to learn about the sustainable and nutritional credentials of game.

One week GCSE Food Preparation and Nutrition pupils learnt to portion local, wild, fresh pheasant and, using the last apples picked from Queen's. Adding rosemary and lettuce picked from our new Queen's Kitchen Garden, pupils produced a pan-fried pheasant breast dish on a garlic and rosemary bruschetta with a horseradish mayonnaise topped with julienne apple. A truly free-range rich flavoured (as well as low fat) dish.

Mr Mann, Head of Food and Nutrition, said, "we are all absolutely delighted that Queen's College has been voted to be in the finals for such a prestigious national food award that recognises the fantastic culinary achievements and nutritional learning of our pupils".

Prominent OQs

Geoff Bisson - Alumni Officer, continues his look at the outstanding achievements of OQs.

Kwamina Ata Amonoo (OQ 1906-09) was the son of Amonoo V, the paramount chief of Anomabo, an important trading centre to the west of Cape Coast in what was then the Gold Coast. He was sent to Queen's to complete his secondary education and to prepare to enter the legal profession. On his first day at the school he made a striking impression as he dressed in what Dapper Channon described as 'the ceremonial outfit of an African chief'. Later, he made an impact as a lawyer and political leader in West Africa.

At Queen's, Kwamina equipped himself with the knowledge and skills needed to succeed in his chosen profession. Here he learned how to debate, to argue a point of view and, through off-the-cuff public speaking, an exercise known as 'sharp practice', to think on his feet. The range of topics covered in the Debating Society while Kwamina was at Queen's was broad and widened his awareness of the significant issues of the day. For example, he contributed to debates on the government of the Congo Free State, anarchism, the value of a Channel Tunnel, prison reform, the payment of MPs and the future of the House of Lords. The photo of the Debating Society in 1908 shows Kwamina (far right).

Kwamina gained experience in exercising responsibility as a prefect at Queen's, and in working as a team member when representing his House (South), notably, in swimming and rugby. Although his time at Queen's was brief (eight terms) he appreciated the benefits of it. This is evident from his return to the school during the summer term of 1909 for a reunion, and from his donation of a number of books to the library.

In November 1908, Kwamina passed the Preliminary Law Exams, and registered at Lincoln's Inn. When he moved to London a few months later, he made contacts with other African students which helped shape his political views. After intense study, Kwamina was, in 1912, called to the bar and entitled to practice as a lawyer in British West Africa. Back home, well connected and fully qualified, he fitted into local life as a member of the West African coastal elite.

The outbreak of war in 1914 disrupted Kwamina's legal career. He enlisted in the Gold Coast Regiment as a corporal, served in the Cameroons, and was awarded a bronze star. In 1916, following heavy losses of troops, he was involved in recruiting Africans into service, speaking at rallies organised by the alliance of the Aborigines' Rights Protection Society (ARPS) and the colonial government. (His name can be found on the School's Roll of Honour.)

Following the war, Kwamina pursued professional and political interests. He assumed a leading role in the British West African Conference (BWAC) that gathered in Accra in March 1920.

Fifty-two delegates adopted a defiant anti-colonial position and advocated a pan-West African nationalism. Kwamina was to the fore in pressing for greater representation of West African interests in London. In 1921, while building up a legal practice in Calabar, he was elected Secretary of the Central Province (Gold Coast) Committee of the National Congress for British West Africa (NCBWA). His responsibilities meant that he moved about and rarely spent time in the remarkable house he had built in his hometown.

The NCBWA had some influence in framing the constitution for Nigeria, introduced by Sir Hugh Clifford in 1922 and, in that year, Kwamina was elected to represent Calabar in the Nigerian Legislative Council. His success was attributed to his character; he was described posthumously as, 'a man who shunned snobbishness, and was liked for his hospitality, affability and great sense of honour'. Kwamina was denied the chance to pursue the aims of the ARPS and NCBWA by his untimely death in a motor accident in December 1929.

I would like to acknowledge the work of James Gibbs (1955-62) in researching the life of Kwamina on which this piece is heavily reliant.

Sixth Form

Round-Up

It has been another busy week in the SFC. The sunshine has ensured that our lovely outdoor area is well used to relax, and to study in some cases!

The Year 13 Assembly focussed on “How to make the most of your last 13 weeks at school!” with reminders on how to get that work/life balance right, offers of help and reminders on how to perfect time management skills. Year 12 tutor group assemblies continued with Woolmer Year 12 CLB engaging their peers with a musical quiz and chocolates for the winners. The main focus of the week however, seemed to be on preparations for our first off-site end of Spring Term function at the Somerset County Cricket Ground on Friday 25 March.

More Year 13 students have reached the stage where they can have their “firming chat” and make the final decision on which of their university offers to place as their firm choice and which to select as their insurance choice. Once done, students are ploughing on with the UK student finance forms and with selecting their university accommodation.

Rugby 7s at Rosslyn Park - Max Johnson (Captain)

The journey to Rosslyn started at 5pm on Monday, the boys and myself were eager to arrive. The bus journey was long. Once we arrived, everyone was rewarded with a lovely team meal at Zizzi which created a great atmosphere for the team the night before the matches.

We woke up early on Tuesday and enjoyed a big breakfast before getting on the bus to Rosslyn and preparing for a fantastic day of rugby.

Our first game saw us take on the Irish school of Ballyclare High, which was a tough game, although we put up a good fight and scored a couple tries. Our second match was against Hills Road School, which was a close game, in which some major heart and grit was shown, as well as some displays of great finesse and showing the progress we have made. We lost the game narrowly but showed considerable improvements from our previous game.

Our last game put us against the local school of Bristol Grammar School which had won all their matches before us. We started slowly but came back into the game, controlling possession and dominating the contest in the second half which was topped off by two great team tries.

In conclusion, the day was great and the boys represented themselves and the school proudly, showing great progress, but a few mistakes cost us points. We are now ready to go again at the small schools 7s tournament in two weeks time!

Last Hockey Season For Our Year 13 Boys

Jack Dormor, captain of the 1st XI Hockey team, reflects on his team's last match of the hockey season.

The 1st XI boys have had a strong term which our results haven't always shown, with a record of four wins, two draws and five defeats. At the beginning of the season, the team had not played much together with only five of us having played in the 1st team before. This showed in an amateur first performance against Blundell's. Progression came quick, however, with wins against Wellington, and then a dramatic final play of the game flick from Toby securing a win against West Buckland. All this prepared us for our second round of the cup, travelling to Dauntseys. As a squad we put up a fight, drawing 2-2 at full time, after Daryl had calmly beaten the keeper in a '1v1' and Toby put in a penalty flick under pressure. Sadly, this lead to a loss in sudden-death flicks. Although this was difficult to take we played well for our last few games of the season competing with big schools including King's Bruton in a 2-2 thriller, and a well deserved win against Claysmore. Great leadership was shown by the Years 13 and 12 with Toby, Matt and Cyril leading by example, and there is some real talent coming through the younger years with Harry Forknall and Elliot Berry looking very comfortable against players two years above them. Queen's will be left in good hands next year, and skills and the lessons learnt by all will be applied in other sporting contexts in the future.

Jason	Chow	Commendation
Thomas	Merrifield	Commendation
Louis	Reynolds	Commendation

A huge congratulations go out to our Y12 Physicists for their success in the Senior Physics Challenge. Three of seven entries were awarded a Bronze Certificate which is a fantastic achievement.

The Senior Physics Challenge is the Year 12 forerunner to the British Physics Olympiad. It is designed to challenge the ablest Y12 physicists in the country by applying their physics knowledge to new situations that draw on several areas of physics and maths at a high level. This year's questions included calculating the dimensions for a linear particle accelerator that uses a radio frequency AC supply, finding the length of an oil molecule by seeing how a droplet of oil spreads across a puddle of water, and a finding safe thickness of lead to replace some concrete used to shield a radioactive source.

Prefects POV by Matthew Emsall

With exams encroaching, Year 13 have been working hard recently. However, a new phenomenon has taken over the study room during revision breaks: "Wordle". "Wordle" is a brain puzzle game that has popped up out of nowhere, and taken social media by storm, growing massively in popularity in recent months as "the" brain game to play.

Like most brain games it is having a positive impact on improving your brain power. However, it is a game where you have to make sure to play it positively and not allow any frustration to take over if you are finding it difficult to solve that particular day's puzzle, as that will undo any positive effects that the game would otherwise have. You have to see it as a challenge to be conquered and keep plucking away at it.

If you do manage to complete the level then you will probably be extremely satisfied with yourself, which is a result of the production of dopamine which is the neurotransmitter which is linked with feeling pleasure, satisfaction and motivation. As a result, completing a level of wordle has the potential to give you the positive boost you need to start your day as well as getting your brain and specifically your problem-solving skills, warmed up. This boost is also going to be positive for your mental health, as well as just being a fun and engaging activity for you to do.

Boarders Corner

Anime Film Night

On Sunday, a number of our International Boarders enjoyed a trip to Exeter to watch the latest Japanese anime film, Jujutsu Kaisen 0. The art and cinema of anime is a firm favourite with a number of our boarders and so they welcomed the chance to go and watch this latest subtitled film so close to home.

Highgrove House

Since returning from the half-term holidays, Highgrove boarders have enjoyed a variety of activities with the aim focused on 'Mindful Makes' - crafting activities that can help with focusing the mind and loosing oneself in the practice of being creative.

Our ongoing macramé activity has lasted a number of weeks with many boarders making a variety of creations from wall hangings to dream catchers. 'Boarding in bloom' was our follow-up activity where everyone had the opportunity to decorate terracotta pots and then plant-up a selection of succulents.

Of course, not all our activities have been crafting. We have also had our sweet treats here and there with ice cream milkshakes and pancakes!

There are still a few more activities to fit in before the Easter holidays, including making Mother's day gifts such as Lavender pillows and lip balm keyring holders, finishing off with a 'Pizza n Chill' evening on the last Friday of term.
